

Like the last assignment, I believe this team did really well. We all submitted our tasks on time. We all communicated regularly via Teams. It was easy to interact with one another. When I had questions and points to clarify, someone answered me immediately. The delegation process was fair and the instructions for each role was clearly defined. Meeting attendance was consistent. One point for improvement was clarifying all the extra tasks required for the assignment during the earlier weeks of the assignment. Other than this, the team collaborated really well. It was a pleasure working with this team. Personally, I learned a lot from the joint expertise of my teammates and as the youngest and most professionally inexperienced team member, I was encouraged to contribute and was guided accordingly when I encountered new concepts.
